

Mrs Sally Smith

Name: Mrs Sally Smith

Born in: 1959

Three words to describe yourself: Eccentric, caring, thoughtful

We asked Mrs Smith, Bosmere's Literacy Manager and Year 3 class teacher, a few questions about herself. Here is what she had to say to us.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS:

According to Mrs Smith, embarrassing moments aren't always something to laugh about. She finds falling in front of a classroom of children not embarrassing, just another lesson learnt. In fact Mrs Smith says nothing is embarrassing - however she confessed that she can go a bit pink when saying something that she felt out loud and wrong.

OTHER JOBS:

Mrs Smith loves being a mum. She cares for her children, and she would love a job just staying at home and looking after toddlers. Since this would be impossible, she thinks that being a writer would be a nice ambition.

HOBBIES:

Mrs Smith's hobbies are very quiet and peaceful. She likes taking walks, reading books to her children and most of all singing.

FAVOURITE MOMENTS:

Mrs Smith's favourite moment was her first class assembly. She liked helping the children to learn the lines and practise. Also, Mrs Smith loves literature, so she included a poem called "Ode to Autumn".

COLLEAGUES

Mrs Smith loves her colleagues and finds herself very lucky to have such good friends. She thinks of all the Bosmere staff as one big team. Everybody has to support and help each other and she finds that that is what they do.

TIME SPENT AT SCHOOL

Mrs Smith has spent almost 15 years serving Bosmere in the happiest way possible. She started out as a helper, and then became an LSA. After a while she realised she wanted to become a full time teacher and Mrs Raper guided her onto the right path and continued to support her.
